A domicile is the official and fiscal place where

- a person resides with the intention to stay there. If a person alternates between two residences in two different places, the official (fiscal) domicile is the place where their financial and personal ties are the strongest, both as a registered address and domicile (for the residents' registration office, for example).
- a company has their head offices and declares their revenues.

SSA needs this declaration in order to apply double taxation conventions between Switzerland and third party countries, please also see our explanatory note attached.

Please be so kind and inform SSA about any changes to your official domicile within a month.
